

KING MANUEL IS A PRISONER

REVOLUTION BREAKS OUT IN LISBON AND CITY IS CUT OFF

London, Oct. 4.—The Santander correspondent of the Reuter Telegraph Company, confirms the report of a revolution in Portugal and adds that the rebels have captured the palace.

London, Oct. 5.—According to the Daily Mail, a revolution broke out in Lisbon yesterday (Tuesday).

The dispatch adds that King Manuel is a prisoner; that street fighting has occurred; that the warships are bombarding the palace and that all communication with the capital is cut off.

No Lisbon dispatches have been received in London since yesterday afternoon, when the Eastern Telegraph Company announced the receipt of one from its station at Carcavellos, eleven miles from Lisbon, stating that all communication with the capital was interrupted.

The Daily Mail prints its report of the revolution without a date line, and it probably may be based on a wireless dispatch said to have been received by The Paris Matin, reading:

"A revolution has broken out in Lisbon, and warships are now bombarding the capital. The army and navy are supporting the revolutionaries."

None of the other London morning newspapers print Lisbon dispatches or have any mention of a revolution.

A Portuguese merchant in London says he received word of a plot in Lisbon on Monday.

The announcement of the death of Professor Bombarda, the Republican deputy and anti-clerical, who was shot by the army lieutenant, Rebello, at Lisbon, Monday, may have possibly started a revolution.

Bombarda was a distinguished educator. He was recently elected to the Portuguese Parliament in the Republican interest. His assailant, according to some reports, was a mad man.

VENGEANCE IS METED BY MOB

NEGRO BURNED AT STAKE IN THE COUNTY OF COVINGTON.

Andalusia, Ala., Oct. 4.—Six hours after he had committed criminal assault upon Mrs. Hiram Stuckey, a prominent young woman of Covington county, Bash Withers, a negro "trusty" at the Henderson convict camp, was taken from the warden last night while en route to prison at Andalusia, tied to a stake by an infuriated mob of 400, and burned. The lynching was conducted in a quiet and orderly manner, after which the mob, formed from adjoining towns, dispersed to their homes, leaving no traces of their fury save the ashes of the negro.

The crime for which the negro was lynched was committed early yesterday afternoon, when he went to the Stuckey farm for the purpose of getting drinking water for his fellow convicts, who were employed at a swamp near by. Entering the house, it is declared, the negro assaulted Mrs. Stuckey, after which he cudgled her into insensibility in an effort to strifle her cries. This morning, it is reported, the woman is in a precarious condition, with little hope of recovery. Fracture of the skull is feared.

Before lapsing into insensibility, Mrs. Stuckey informed her rescuers of the assault, naming the "trusty," whom she knew, as the perpetrator of the deed. The negro was caught and hurried to the stockade at Sanford, six miles from Andalusia. Upon hearing rumors of a mob Warden J. L. Long at 9 o'clock attempted to spirit the convict to prison at Andalusia, but was intercepted on the outskirts of the village, where his charge was taken from him, tied to a stake, shot at and burned.

The negro was sent up from Morgan county in 1903 on a charge of robbery. Up to the time of yesterday's assault, he had been regarded as a faithful employe at the lumber camp, and served as water boy for the convicts. He was about 30 years old.

PAVING ON FOSTER STREET

Foster street has been graded by the paving crew and will now be paved. The steam mixer and the hands have been moved to this street and the work will begin on the corner by the government building.

MANY KILLED AND INJURED IN WRECK

TWO SPEEDING TROLLEY CARS COME TOGETHER ON A CURVE

Stanton, Ill., Oct. 4.—Disregard for the train dispatcher's orders and a sharp bend in the track which hid two rushing trolley cars from each other, were responsible today for the most appalling wreck in the history of the electric railroads of Illinois.

Twenty-eight persons were instantly killed, one died on the way to a hospital, another is not expected to live until morning, and twenty-six others sustained more or less serious injuries.

The collision occurred on the lines of the Illinois Traction System, two miles north of this place, and the officials of the road announced early in the evening that thirty-seven lives had been crushed out in the wreck. Twenty-eight of the dead are now in Carlinville, Ill. One is at Granite City, Ill., and if eight others lost their lives, they cannot be located tonight. All that was positively known at midnight was that twenty-nine had been killed.

3 DAYS MORE

Of The Following Special Bargains

Our sale beginning Sept. 24, has proven a decided success so far. We have the goods we advertised and are selling them as advertised. The people have learned that we do just what we say we will, consequently they know what to expect when we advertise a "SALE."

We are letting goods go at such unreasonable prices that it staggers the belief the most skeptical—not a dissatisfied customer has shown up, which proves conclusively that each customer is satisfied.

I have no apologies to make to my competitors for these prices. As advertised before, money is what we need, and need it now, and have put on these unreasonable prices, including bargain-giving for not other reason than to raise a big lot of money in a short time.

Our goods are not shelf worn, shoddy, second-handed, but the best goods direct from the mills and manufacturers.

For the reason I stated above, we are going to continue this sale one week, positively closing October 8, after which time the goods will take their former prices. Space will not admit of a protracted list of prices, but we invite you to look to your best interest and realize the benefits to be derived in purchasing your needs before the end of this SALE.

Where the Government Helps the Blind Tiger Business

The government is supposed to set a good example, but it doesn't do it every time. For instance, the government shouldn't be allowed to issue a license to sell whiskey in prohibition territory, but it does. It not only issues the license, but it aids and abets the blind tigers, by issuing them licenses and refusing to make public the names of the parties taking out such license.

The laws of Alabama require the sheriff to secure from the collector of internal revenue between the first and tenth of each month, the names of parties to whom licenses have been issued, giving not only their real names, but the location of their place of business, and street number. This same law provides that the sheriff shall be paid $25 per annum out of the county's funds for such work, and also for the expense of having this list published each month. That all looks mighty nice, and was meant to result in much good, but the government officials refuse to give the names to the public—not even to the sheriff. The government will give the bogus names of the alleged "clubs," or dives, in which the license has been issued. The government, of course, has the real names of the applicants for the license, and it knows in every instance the parties' names, their location and street number, but it aids the blind tiger business by refusing to make known the real names.

The federal statutes likely do not require that the real names be made public, and the officials at the head of the revenue department in Alabama, take advantage of that, and do not give out the information.

If this isn't aiding and abetting in the violation of the state laws, we hardly know what would constitute a case.

The same law that requires the sheriff to secure these names once a month, and have them published, and provides that he be paid $25 per annum for his services, doesn't seem to take into consideration that to secure this information a trip to the revenue collector's office in Birmingham is necessary. Else, he must keep some one in that city on the look out for such information and send it to him. A trip to Birmingham and return would be something like $10 a month, when the job pays but a little over $2 a month. Great bill, this, and the farmer serves a loving cup for his far-etchedness.

But this doesn't alter the state of the government is sitting with the blind tigers in prohibition territory when it issues the use to any and every kind of a fictitious name that the applicants happen to think of, and to pass on a name known to the real name of the parties having a license upon a good license. The government knows the man violating the state laws, nine times out of ten.

In Florida Politics

The Palm Beach Journal says that it cannot understand the reason for naming a man to succeed the late Senator Brewster. The Journal says that the primary is the thing, all right, but it is as this election will come off at a time when there are no other candidates running, that the expense of holding the primary will be borne by the senatorial candidates alone, and may be as much as $12,000 or $18,000. It strikes us that this is some expense for holding a primary, even in Florida. In Florida, the primary would only amount to an endorsement of the people, to show the legislature what they wanted, like it is in Alabama, but the primary nominee is the man that the legislature will elect. The legitimate expense of holding an election shouldn't run to such figures as the Journal names, while it is likely that such an amount will be spent by the candidates, but it's for other purposes than actual expenses.

The Journal would have the legislature name the man when it meets next year, and then in the regular election of 1912, let the people do the naming, requiring each candidate before the legislature to take a pledge to resign if the people didn't name him when they get a whack.

This finally puts it up to the people, and isn't altogether a bad idea, but we don't believe that it will be adopted in Florida—they have too much politics down there.

He's Been There.

A sort of cranky fellow runs a magazine in Texas, called Klamity's Harpoon, which sticks into nearly everything that comes along, but the editor is a yard wide and selvaige at both ends, on some things. Hear him on the "back to the farm" cry:

"Nowadays, the man who has the corn has the coin. 'Back to the farm' is now the cry, and they are going in battalions. When a bale of cotton is worth seventy-five dollars in gold, a young man is a natural born fool to line up behind a counter and tear calico at $30 a month and live on bull-neck steak and celluloid prunes. Clerk once, clerk always, is the almost universal rule.

"I am glad the farmer boy has at last come into his own. It took a long time to get it, but it will be a longer time before he loses his hold upon the world. To the average country boy, the town or city has a fascination hard to resist. Those who have been born and raised in the country understand this.

"As a boy, I remember how it thrilled me to get to town. I always got hungry as soon as I hit the door of the old store house, although I had just left the ranch where there were plenty of hot biscuits, fresh butter, pure milk, chicken, country ham and eggs, but the canned sardines looked good to me.

Philosophy

Says Uncle Walt, the Fat Post, in the Chicago News: "Men are not made to be happy, and do not live to enjoy life. They are made to suffer, and to endure. The country is full of little-minded citizens who are resolved that some shall find life a downy bed of roses, and the result is that there is a general epidemic of brick bats and bad smells, and we are all suffering from the same ailment. The country is full of little-minded citizens who are resolved that some shall find life a downy bed of roses, and the result is that there is a general epidemic of brick bats and bad smells, and we are all suffering from the same ailment. The country is full of little-minded citizens who are resolved that some shall find life a downy bed of roses, and the result is that there is a general epidemic of brick bats and bad smells, and we are all suffering from the same ailment.

Yes, we all know that education doesn't come from books alone, but one must rub up against the common things of life, and get acquainted with them before he can be really called an educated man. Some man said the best educated man he ever knew had made his mark. This is rare, of course, but we have many people who are educated, though educated along some line, but haven't left the second grade in others.

The educated man is the man who got something else as he passed along.

Prohibition laws are failures every where you go, if you find that the officials feel that way about it to start with. Where the officials feel that the law will prohibit, almost as severely as its enemies predicted a year ago, you cannot buy whiskey to mix with camphor gum; you cannot buy it if you have been bitten by a snake, and have the snake along to prove it. All laws, as to that matter, are just as good as the officials make them.

The council made a good selection when it put Mr. Hornsby on in Ward 3, for he lives just a block from the noise at the oil mill. We know that he will not have to be reminded of this nuisance, and we expect that he will have an eye on opening up North Appletree street, in justice to the many people who live on the north side of the Coast Line.

A middle western paper states that one more good rain would put the corn crop out of danger, but further states that they can't wait until next spring for the rain. We never realize what a big country we live in till we think of that statement made a day or two ago, and then think of how many farmers in this section are through gathering corn.

Alice Longvelt-Rooseworth hasn't been accused of smoking cigarettes in two or three weeks, and we are prepared to believe that she isn't guilty, and hasn't been, but that the story was put out by the "Old Guard" to injure the Colonel's insurgent boom.

Some one is trying to get the floor by making the statement that but eighty people in this country ever died of snake bite. He ought to be jailed, for anyone knows it's dangerous to go fishing or hunting, without a snake bite remedy.

BOUND FOR THE FRONT.

An Incident Showing the Military Courage of the Montenegrins.

In military courage the Montenegrins probably stands at the head of European races. The best wish for a baby boy is, "May you not die in your bed," and to face death is to man or boy only a joyous game. Says W. J. Stillman in his "Autobiography."

I have seen a man under a heavy Turkish fire deliberately leave the trenches and climb the breastwork, only to expose himself from sheer bravado.

While lying at headquarters at Orshuk, awaiting the opening of the campaign in 1877, I was walking one day with the prince when a boy of sixteen or eighteen approached us, cap in hand.

"Now," said the prince, "I'll show you an interesting thing. This boy is the last of a good family. His father and brothers were all killed in the last battle, and I ordered him to go home and stay with his mother and sisters; that the family might not be once extinct."

The boy drew near and stopped before us, his head down, his cap in hand.

"What do you want?" asked the prince.

"I want to go back to my battalion."

"But," said the prince, "you are the last of your line, and I cannot allow a good family to be lost. You must go home and take care of your mother."

The boy began to cry bitterly.

"Will you go home quietly and stay there," said the prince, "or will you take a flogging and be allowed to fight?"

The boy thought for a moment. A flogging, he knew well, is the deepest disgrace that can befall a Montenegrin.

"Well," he broke out, "since it isn't for stealing, I'll be flogged."

"No," said the prince, "you must go home."

Then the boy broke down utterly.

"But," he cried, "I want to avenge my father and brothers!"

He went away still crying, and the prince said, "In spite of all this he will be in the next battle."

Artful Parisian Beggars.

Parisian beggars have been known to go far beyond a sham fight with a dog in the gutter for a crust. Maxime du Camp has recorded how, on an August Sunday in 1887, at an hour when the quays were crowded, a shabby man uttered a cry of despair and threw himself into the Seine near the Pont de l'Alma. He had sunk twice when a man in workmen's clothes plunged in, swam after him and effected an apparently difficult rescue. As the crowd surrounded the two on the bank the rescued one slowly came to, reproached the rescuer for saving a hopeless, workless man, who had not eaten for three days, and tried to rush off again, crying, "Let me die!" The rescuer pulled out half a franc, saying: "Take this. I shall only have to go without dinner today." And of course the crowd liberally followed suit. But the skeptical police shadowed the two, saw them count up the spoils in a tavern and presently arrested the two ex-convicts, dead drunk. — London Chronicle.

Keep Accounts.

Keeping accounts, simple in form, plain, clear and easily understood, showing amounts due to or from others, entering correctly the dates on which money is paid out or received, is the best plan to avoid disputes about money matters and relieves the memory of many unnecessary burdens. A written record of a money transaction has greater legal value in case of controversy in court than any verbal statement. The habit of keeping accounts induces economy in expenditure and inspires the habit of saving up, besides showing at all times a correct financial condition. Housekeepers, mechanics and all who handle money in the management of their personal affairs will find it most profitable to form the habit of keeping accounts.

aid by the officials of the road on the crew of the local car No. 14, which was in charge of M. A. Leonard, conductor, and John Liedman, motorman, both of Staunton. This car was northbound, running on its regular schedule, and had orders to wait at Staunton for two sections of Train No. 73, which were bound for St. Louis. The northbound car waited until the first section had passed, and then, in total disregard for orders, pulled out on the main track and started ahead.

Two miles north of Staunton is Dickerson's curve, a sharp bend in the track, toward which the ground slopes both from the north and from the south. Dense foliage, grows on the inner side of the curve and it is impossible to see for any distance ahead. Both cars moving at fully forty miles an hour, approached this curve from opposite directions, both of them tearing along on a down grade.

L. W. Crow, of Chipley, Fla., was in the city yesterday.

R. S. Woolfolk, Jr., of Arlton, was in the city this morning.

C. L. Metcalf, of Hartford, was a visitor to the city last night and today.

I. C. Banks returned to his home in Lakeland last night after a visit of several weeks to relatives in Dothan and other places in the state.

Montford Beach and Thurman Alford, of Columbia, who have been with a surveying crew for the Central road at Andalusia for several months, passed through the city today on their way home.

TWO-ROUND BOUT

Mayor Baker and John McLean had a two-round bout yesterday afternoon, growing out of a fine rile mayor imposed upon McLean for gambling. Both men were out of training, and the damage done was slight, but the Marquis of Queensbury rules were not strictly observed. This is probably where the president of the council is called in to act as umpire.

JUST A STEP

WHEN it's but a step from the ordinary, passably well dressed majority into the ranks of the faultlessly dressed men, why not take it?

Isn't it worth something to wear clothes that elevate you above the majority—that mark you as a man who cares?

There's just as much difference in clothes as there is in a watch. One may look just as good as another when you try it, but oh! what a difference in the end.

To wear the best—the correct kind—will cost you no more than for the almost-best kind, and considerably less than the high-priced custom-tailored kind. At the same time you will secure the prestige and pleasure which are, without doubt, the possession of the well-dressed man, together with that touch of taste and refinement which always marks the gentleman.

You can accomplish all this by simply selecting one of the high class suits from among our magnificent assortment. You can't go wrong if you wear our clothes.

Call and see yourself in some of the new Fall models.

CLOTHING for BOYS THE DISTINCTIVE SORT OF

In our Boys' Clothing Department you will find all that a boy desires in style and beauty and all that the parent desires in durability. You'll find here clothes for boys possessing that high distinction in style so much sought by those who are particular, as they should be, about their boys' dress.

Our Boys' Clothing is built to stand hard wear. Every garment is guaranteed to give satisfactory service.

Once get thoroughly acquainted with our Boys' Clothes and you'll let your boy wear no others.

You'll find here everything needed for your boys' wardrobe, in qualities that satisfy and at prices that please. Clothe your boy here and we will save you money.

DEPARTMENT OF WOMAN'S WORK WILL BE SUPERB.

Exhibits Will Cover Everything in the Way of Woman's Work From Fine Oil Paintings to Beaten Biscuit and Canned Tomatoes—Thousands of Women Are Interested.

Miss Elise Chipley of Pensacola, who is in charge of the department of woman's work for the great interstate fair, which will be held at Pensacola Nov. 7 to 12, inclusive, has written to more than 3,000 women in the counties that will be represented at the fair, and from the hundreds of responses that she has obtained it is safe to prophesy that no fair ever held in this section of the country has awakened more interest among the women. The premiums to be awarded in this department cover a wide range and are liberal. They include almost everything in the realm of the household, from baking, preserving and canning and all the arts of the kitchen to embroidery and fancy work of all kinds, and the department includes painting on china and oil painting and water colors. Nearly all the counties will have a special department for woman's work, and many of the exhibitors will bring great displays of things that are not in the premium list. The interest manifested in the woman's department has not been con-

IMPORTANCE OF BIG FAIRS.

Many People Fail to Appreciate the Uses of Great State and Interstate Fairs Until They Attend a Modern One.

So many people fail to recognize the uses and importance of the modern state or interstate fair because of the reputation and methods of the old fairs under the old regime and fail to attend for that reason. Once they attend a well got up modern fair and find that it is very instructive as well as enjoyable and amusing they will again lose an opportunity of attending one.

The great interstate fair that will be held at Pensacola Nov. 7 to 12, inclusive, will be modern and strictly up to date in every respect. While it will offer almost everything that is to be offered in the way of high class and thrilling amusements it will also be one of those fairs that prove to be educators both to the casual visitor and to the exhibitor himself. Its real design is to teach the people through object lessons.

Some people think that fairs are got up by a group of men to make money. Those who have attended a few of the modern fairs that have come into vogue with the last decade have found out that they are entirely different.

The citizen who derives the greatest benefit from a large fair is he who makes an exhibit of his live stock and farm produce. It is also he who learns that there are a great many things to a fair besides pleasure and excitement. It is he, too, that learns that there are many advantages to be derived from exhibiting things that are not seen

BLOWING BOTTLES.

Processes Through Which Even the Most Ordinary Must Go.

Although the oldest bottles known were made of skins, glass bottles containing wine are represented on Egyptian monuments which are more than 4,000 years old, while as early as Pharaoh of the Exodus there were bottles made of bronze, silver, gold, porcelain and alabaster, which from their superior workmanship and elegant design go to prove that even at that period the art of bottle making was by no means in its infancy. The early history of the bottle is somewhat meager, owing no doubt to the fact that the true bottle has never been a thing of much beauty, except in a few rare instances, but rather a humble vessel of no intrinsic value.

Bottles are made today in stupendous quantities and are of all sorts, sizes and descriptions. In the manufacture of a common bottle either sand, soap boiler's waste, brick clay or other materials, according to locality, are used. Having been run down into a molten mass, the metal is skimmed, and the first operator, known as the "gatherer," takes a little of the glass on the end of a heated pipe. When this has cooled somewhat he again dips his pipe into the glass, having "gathered" in the two dips sufficient to make a bottle. This he hands on to the "blower," who as he blows through the tube rolls the metal on a stone, thereby fashioning the bottle neck. The roughly shaped mass is then placed in a mold and the operator continues to blow until he has brought it to the required form. After this the bottle is handed to the finisher, who by touching the neck with a small bit of iron dipped in water completely severs it from the pipe. He attaches the pontee, an iron instrument tipped with molten glass, to the bottom of the bottle and thus gives it the usual rounded shape. This pontee may be used for from twenty to twenty-four dozen bottles. Then, warming the bottle at the furnace, the finisher takes a small quantity of the metal on what is known as a ring iron and, turning it around the mouth, forms the ring seen at the top of the neck. Taking the shears, he trims the neck. In the center of one blade of the shears is a piece of brass tapering like a cork, which forms the inner mouth, while the other blade has a piece of brass fastened to it, for the purpose of shaping the ring. A boy lifts the completed bottle on a fork, and it is taken to the annealing arch, which contains about ten or twelve rows of bottles placed in bins one above the other. These are the processes which even the cheapest and most ordinary bottle has to go through. So it can well be imagined what an infinitude of care and trouble is needed to produce a bottle of the finest grade.—London Globe.

need to any one section, but the ladies in every county within the district have become interested and will make a good showing. This department will be a real fair in itself and a medium of education as well as of pleasure and amusement for the many thousands of ladies who will attend the fair. tioned in the premium books. It is true that the premiums are always an incentive, and it is true, too, that the premiums often repay him for the trouble in getting up the exhibit.

The greatest benefit to be derived from a fair is by the man who early makes up his mind to become an exhibitor and spends the intervening time in getting ready.

M. D. CLAYTON WILL STUMP NEW YORK FOR JNO. A. DIX

New York, Oct. 4.—Democratic orators from all parts of the United States will stump at New York state in behalf of John A. Dix, the Democratic candidate for governor. The list of names announced at the Democratic headquarters includes Champ Clark, of Missouri; Representative Clayton, of Alabama; Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, and others.

As a result of a curious omission on the part of the chairman of the state convention which nominated Mr. Dix, the latter may never be formally notified of his nomination, at least not in the usual way. The convention chairman should have named a committee on notification, but a letter from him just received at Democratic headquarters here says he, somehow or other, overlooked the detail. He was not sure, he said, whether he should correct the omission or let things stand as they are. It has been suggested that the chairman merely write to Mr. Dix notifying him of his nomination and that the latter simply reply to it by letter.

ATTORNEY IS ARRESTED

Birmingham, Oct. 4.—M. T. Ramey, an attorney, was arrested today on a warrant sworn out by R. L. Newman, warden at the county jail, charging that he did, with the intent to facilitate the escape of William Bailey or William Nabers, convey into said jail saws.

After being in jail a few hours, Ramey made bond in the sum of $500 and was released. He made a statement to a newspaper man denying that he knew what was in a little package that he left at the county jail yesterday afternoon, the package containing six saws and intended for Bailey and Nabers. He said that it was customary for him to call at the jail and see clients and deliver parcels sent by friends of prisoners. He said that he never objected to the warden at the jail searching and investigating every package taken to the jail and when accused of attempting to pass saws into the jail he was greatly surprised. He said that the package was intended for Bailey and Nabers both.

Bailey is under sentence for having carnal knowledge of a little girl, an appeal being taken to the supreme court. Nabers is under indictment charged with causing a fast northbound Louisville and Nashville Railroad train to wreck at Cunningham, north of Birmingham, several months ago, in which wreck two men were killed.

Sheriff Higdon is very indignant at the attempt to pass saws to the prisoners in the county jail.

SAILORS COULD NOT SWIM

New York, Oct. 4.—Midshipman Godfrey Chevalier, the hero of the Atlantic fleet's disaster last Saturday night when more than a score of the battleship New Hampshire' sailors were lost by the swamping of a barge, has just been released from the care of surgeons. He nearly perished from exhaustion after rescuing a dozen or more of the imperilled sailors. Even in the light of his own heroic conduct, Chevalier does not regard the affair with any degree of satisfaction.

It seems as if I have always been in trouble," he told a number of friends who went aboard the New Hampshire to congratulate him on the part he played in the work of rescue. "There was a hazing matter at Annapolis in my plebe year when every one in my class thought I had peached on the upper classmen. Other things followed one another so that I thought I was hoodooed for fair.

"Then for a while it seemed as if I had a little luck. Things were going well, but two months ago at Provincetown, Mass., my old bad luck turned up again. I was out in a cutter and we nearly collided with another boat as we rounded the prow of the battleship.

"I saw that the other craft was likely to take off our rudder, so I reached out with my hand to fend her off. The result was that my hand was crushed and it was only taken out of the plaster cast a few days ago.

"Then came the awful affair of Saturday night. That is too horrible for me to talk about."

One of the striking features of the tragedy, at least to landsmen, has been the revelation that so many sailors were unable to save themselves by swimming. Lieutenant Commander Schofield, of the New Hampshire, is authority for the statement that a recent census of the ship shows that more than 300 members of the crew are unable to swim.

"There is nothing in the regulations compelling enlisted men to learn to swim," says Commander Schofield. "Many of them enlist from inland towns, where they never had an opportunity to learn. When they get liberty they don't want to spend their time that way."

Miss Daisy Simonton goes to Birmingham tomorrow morning to visit her brother Holt, and to attend the fair.

Charlie Malone, of Cottonwood, was in town today.

The Name of Stebbins.

The Stebbins family is fairly numerous. It is not now a classic name. Its owners wear it ignorantly—more the shame for them. It is by right a classic name, borne as it was by the first of Christian martyrs—St. Steven, sometimes spelled Stephen. Steven is the Dutch way of spelling it. Spell it in Spanish—Esteban. Drop the initial silent "e," and then you have Steban. Among the ignorant the step to Stebbins is very short. And the honorable name of St. Steven takes on degradation even as the fine old Norman-French
